Board of Public Works and Safety reviews status of 2020 projects

BY MARK CAMPBELL

With very little business requiring official action, Madison's Board of Public Works and Safety took Monday's first meeting of the new year to hear status reports on several 2020 projects ranging from city streets and sidewalk upgrades to historic preservation work and a new addition to the office of Historic Preservation and City Planning.

Brooke Peach

The only official business that took place was board approval for a final payout of $7,500 on a PACE grant to replace windows on a home at 213 West Second Street. The grant had been approved last year with work finally completed in December.

Looking at photos of the completed work, Mayor Bob Courtney noted that he appreciates the property owner's attention to detail while upgrading windows because the new windows match the old windows and maintain the aesthetic historic look and character of the home.

"The new windows I cannot tell from the original windows that were there," Courtney said, applauding the attention to preservation.

In other reports, board member Karl Eaglin reported that windows are now being installed on the north side of the former Eagle Cotton Mill Building that is being renovated into a Fairfield by Marriott boutique hotel overlooking the Ohio River on Vaughn Drive.

The building, which sat unused and without windows for several years until the city was able to find an investor to repurpose the brick, former textile manufacturing site into a hotel, now has a new roof, the brick facade has been cleaned and tuck pointed and windows are going in. Meanwhile, work on the interior is also progressing and there are plans to open in May.

City Planner-Preservation Coordinator Nicole Schell, who has worked closely with both the PACE and the Cotton Mill projects, introduced

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Workers were busy installing new windows in the former Eagle Cotton Mill Building on Monday as progress continues on the historic structure's renovation into a boutique hotel. The building, which sat unused and with most windows missing for decades, will be a Fairfield by Marriott by May of this year if construction is completed on schedule.

a new staff member to that office with the intent on splitting duties with Schell handling city planning and new hire Brooke Peach taking over as Madison's historic preservation coordinator.

Peach, a native of Louisiana who most recently lived in Tennessee where she owned and operated a historic preservation business, recently relocated to Madison and is now on the job at City Hall. Schell said Peach's background in historic preservation makes her a perfect fit to take on those duties in Madison.

Schell has held both the historic preservation and city planner positions for the last five years, a span in which dozens of homes and businesses have been upgraded through PACE and the city has tackled several major projects after receiving Stellar Community

Designation — a busy workload for one person.

In other reports, Courtney said the city and the Indiana Department of Transportation have held preliminary discussions on how to keep heavy trucks from frequenting Hanging Rock Hill — a situation the mayor says is not only a safety issue but also damaging to the pavement. While he supports a lower weight limits, the state is considering that and other options.

Courtney said INDOT is evaluating not only Hanging Rock Hill but also the US 421 Ohio River bridge approach to the city — especially in terms of how large trucks are navigating the traffic signal at Harrison and East Second streets just a block from the bridge.

The new gateway to the city was designed to channel all truck traffic through that intersection on US 421 but apparently a few trucks are heading west on East Second Street, a narrow, congested neighborhood that creates the bottleneck which necessitated the new bridge approach in the first place.

Courtney said INDOT is reviewing that intersection as well as ways to best handle the massive influx of traffic now seen on East Main Street now that almost all bridge traffic is being routed directly off the bridge and onto Main Street.

"East Main Street is seeing a lot more traffic and further east than ever before," Courtney said, noting that it has made it almost impossible for pedestrians to cross that area of Main Street until traffic is forced to stop at the signal at Main and Walnut streets.

Madison Park's online portal is now live

BY MARK CAMPBELL

The City of Madison's new online portal for accessing Parks Department programs, reservations and rentals went live at noon on Monday as a link on the city's website at www.madison-in.gov.

According to Parks Department Director Matt Woolard, the portal RecDesk — available at madisonin.recdesk.com — is designed to be "very user friendly" and will allow users to schedule reservations for services like golfing at Sunrise Golf Course and camping at the Madison Campground at Vaughn Drive and Ferry Street. It will also serve as a portal where parents can register their children for youth leagues, adults can sign up and pay for adult leagues and patrons can reserve shelter houses and pay user fees for various facilities within the parks system.

Woolard said the portal will include directions that are easy to follow and a payment system that allows users to make one-time online payments or set up an account for ongoing payments like golfers who play several times annually.

"It's a very clean and simple site," said Woolard, who noted that various programs, memberships, facilities and leagues for the first time will be accessible online and that setting up an account should take less than five minutes.

"We can run all of our leagues exclusively through this now, including tee times at Sunrise and space reservation at the

Local DNR officers honored

Thomas named District 9 Officer of the Year

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Two local conservation officers were recognized recently — one as the district's officer of the year and the other for retiring after 33 years of service.

Indiana Conservation Officer Josh Thomas, who serves Jefferson and Switzerland counties as well as nine other counties in the Department of Natural Resources' District 9, has been selected as the 2020 District 9 Indiana Conservation Officer of the Year.

A former US Marine and seven-year veteran of the DNR's Law Enforcement Division from Madison, Thomas currently serves as a drill instructor and is a member of the Honor Guard program. He is an instructor in use of force, patrol rifle as well as a field training and public relations officer.

The district award places Thomas in the running for the DNR's Pitzer Award, which is given to the top overall conservation officer in Indiana and selected from the state's 10 district award winners. The Pitzer award is named after Indiana Conservation Officer James D. Pitzer, who was fatally shot while investigating illegal hunting activity on Jan. 2, 1961, in Jay County.

In addition to Jefferson and Switzerland Counties, Thomas also serves Ripley, Jennings, Dearborn, Ohio, Decatur, Fayette, Franklin, Rush and Union counties.

Kentucky adds its first new nature preserve in a decade

Drennon Creek State Nature Preserve could help restore endangered plants, rare mussels

BY BILL ESTEP
LEXINGTON HERALD-LEADER

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The state's newest nature preserve is a hilly 338-acre refuge a few miles from the Kentucky River, much of it wooded, with a beautiful creek running through it and the potential to restore endangered plants and rare mussels.

The Drennon Creek State Nature

Preserve in Henry County is the first new preserve added to the state system in a decade.

The Office of Kentucky Nature Preserves (OKNP) took title to the land in early 2020.

"It was just really an extraordinary property," said Zeb Weese, executive director of the agency.

Mary Margaret Lowe and Eugene Lacefield, both former employees at the University of Kentucky, bought the land as a getaway in 1978.

They built a solar home and trails, eradicated invasive plants and practiced good forest management.

COVID-19 death toll now 8,514 in Indiana, 2,749 in Kentucky

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana health officials have reported 3,630 new coronavirus infections and 39 additional COVID-19 deaths while Kentucky reported 2,319 new cases and 26 new deaths as both states continued to see a slight decrease in related hospitalizations following a series of spikes throughout December.

Locally in Indiana, Jefferson County saw 16 new cases and zero deaths, bringing the county's overall totals to 2,221 cases and 37 overall deaths attributed to the coronavirus since March while Switzerland County had nine new cases and no deaths for a total of 523 cases and five deaths during the pandemic.

Meanwhile in Kentucky, Trimble County Schools are resuming in-person and virtual classes today and will follow the same instructional model as the first semester going forward with students physically attending classes in person Monday through Thursday and Fridays set aside for non-traditional instruction days for all students.

The North Central Regional Health District reported 399 total cases in Trimble with 36 of those still active. There have been five related deaths. Carroll County has now had 556 total cases and seven deaths since the pandemic began.

The newly confirmed statewide deaths in Indiana, which occurred over several days, raised the state's death toll to 8,514, including both confirmed and presumed infections, the Indiana State Department of Health said Monday.

The number of Indiana residents known to have had the coronavirus is now up to 529,688.

The overall death toll in Kentucky now stands at 2,749 with 279,143 total cases.

The Indiana state health department also reported that 2,836 people were hospitalized with COVID-19 on Sunday at Indiana's hospitals — an 18% decrease from pandemic-high hospitalization rates a month ago.

Another 208 cases of COVID-19 in Indiana schools were additionally reported, according to the agency's weekly school statistics update.

As of Monday, 1,886 Indiana schools have had at least one confirmed case of COVID-19. An additional 175 schools have not reported any cases, and 307 schools have yet to report their data to the state.

Although Indiana schools were closed last week for winter recess, state health officials asked administrators to report virus exposures from school-sponsored activities that occurred during the break.

Ultimately, they realized they wanted to do something with the land to benefit others far into the future, which led to donating nearly all their 350 acres to OKNP.

The designation as a nature preserve carries the highest level of legal protection for the land.

"We're interested in preserving the habitat," said Lowe, who also worked many years at Georgetown College.

The land they donated was valued at just over $1 million.

Lowe and Lacefield said they hope their donation encourages other people to think about ways they can help protect the environment.

"We were amazed ... that two people could offer and provide a state nature preserve for all of Kentucky and surrounding peoples to come visit," Lacefield was quoted in OKNP's annual report.

'ONE OF THE BEST EXAMPLES'

It's not uncommon for the state to add land to existing nature preserves, but it doesn't often create a new preserve, for a number of reasons.

Owners must be willing to sell or donate the land because OKNP only acquires land from willing participants, and the state has to have the money to buy property and to manage it. It also helps to have larger tracts of land because that creates more potential for conservation work.

In addition, the land has to have particular attributes to qualify for protection as a nature preserve. Those include the best remaining examples of rare species populations or some of the best scenery in the state.

"For us to really acquire something as a state nature preserve, it has to be one of the best examples of that ecological community, of that habitat type, have federally endangered species" or species listed in Kentucky as endangered or threatened, Weese said.

One thing that qualified the preserve in Henry County was the potential to restore a federally endangered species called Braun's rockcress, which is rare globally.

It has been found only in Franklin, Henry and Owen counties in Kentucky, often on the steep slopes along the Kentucky River, and in two Tennessee counties.

The Drennon Creek preserve is near the northernmost spot where the flow-er has been found.

FUTURE SPOT FOR HIKING AND BIRD-WATCHING

The first priority for the preserve is to plant Braun's rockcress to try to develop a sustainable population, according to OKNP's annual report.

There also is potential at the site to restore another endangered plant called the Kentucky bladderpod, and to restore rare species of mussels, Weese said.

Once restoration of Braun's rockcress has reached an acceptable point, the state will consider opening the preserve to hiking and other low-impact activities, such as bird-watching.

OKNP provides hiking and other activities on conservation lands it manages, but its main mission is to protect land recognized for its natural significance, including rare species.

Of 372 plant species in the state designated as endangered, threatened or of special concern, for instance, 206 are conserved in OKNP's nature preserves or natural areas, according to the report.

In addition to nature preserves, OKNP uses other programs to conserve land and protect the environment and rare species, including conservation easements and partnerships with federal, state and local governments, non-profit agencies and private landowners.

The agency also manages the state's wild rivers program.

The agency added 2,700 acres to protected status in Fiscal Year 2020, which was between July 1, 2019 and June 30, 2020.

At the start of the current 2021 fiscal year, there was a total of 143,435 acres under protection through various OKNP programs, including more than 40 state nature preserves. That amounted to less than 0.6% of the land in Kentucky.

The agency is about halfway to the goal of conserving some property in each of Kentucky's 120 counties, Weese said.

FINDING ENDANGERED SPECIES

It's not unusual for botanists and ecologists with OKNP to find new populations of species listed as endangered or threatened as they carry out the constant work-in-progress of locating, assessing and protecting rare species and significant natural areas.

In the 2020 fiscal year, for instance, the agency found dozens of new populations of plants. Perhaps the most notable was the discovery of a population of the four angled rose gentian in Pulaski County, according to the annual report.

The plant had never been recorded west of the Appalachian Mountains.

It's a challenge to keep ahead of impacts such as development and a changing climate, but there are successes.

One example: Survey work in the most recent fiscal year showed that the state's population of a plant called running buffalo is stable enough to remove it from the list of endangered species, according to the OKNP report.

"I'm sure that we're falling behind on some species and we're making progress on others," Weese said of the effort to preserve species in Kentucky.

The Office of Kentucky Nature Preserves began working with the state Transportation Cabinet in the 2020 fiscal year to look for rare plants and grasslands, and habitat for pollinators such as bees and butterflies, on the rights-of-way along state roads.

Botanists did surveys along 7,000 miles of roads in 23 counties in fiscal 2020 and found more than 20 spots that could provide top habitat for pollinating insects, and many had rare plants, according to the OKNP report.

The agency plans to survey all state roads over five years.

'THEY'RE PART OF WHO WE ARE'

Funding for conservation work has gone down from some sources in recent years, but it was good news for OKNP that the one-year budget approved by the legislature in the 2020 session did not take money from the Kentucky Land Heritage Conservation Fund to use for other purposes.

It was the first budget since 2014 that didn't sweep money from the fund.

The land conservation fund gets money from a number of sources, including the state's portion of a tax on unmined coal, environmental fines, interest income, donations and the sale of nature license plates.

However, revenue from the unmined minerals tax has dropped sharply because of a reduction in the assessed value of coal, so OKNP received nothing from that source in Fiscal Year 2020.

Revenue from nature license plates also has gone down, from $678,117 in 2010 to $361,460 in 2020, mostly because the state has approved more specialty plates, creating other causes for people to support.

Weese said buying a nature license plate is a simple way for Kentucky residents to help support land conservation, habitat management and eco-tourism.

People often ask why it's important to preserve a particular plant or insect. The answer is that all of them are part of what makes Kentucky unique, Weese said.

"They're part of who we are," Weese said. "When we lose these places, not only do we lose these areas, we lose part of our history. It is protecting what makes Kentucky, Kentucky."

From staff reports
North Vernon Police Department investigating tool thefts
North Vernon Police are investigating a pair of thefts that apparently occurred in the early morning hours on New Year's Eve Thursday morning.
Officers responding to an alarm shortly before 6 a.m. Thursday at the Orscheln Farm & Home on State Road 3 in North Vernon found that a front window had been broken to gain entry the building and several battery-operated tools and tool accessory packs were missing.
The second theft was reported at about 8 a.m. when officers were called to an apartment construction site on State Road 7 just north of State Road 50 in North Vernon, where a lock had been cut off a storage trailer at the construction site and a gas-operated demolition saw was missing from the trailer.
North Vernon Police Department is investigating both thefts. Anyone with information, should call the police department at 812-346-1466. Information can also be forwarded using the tip line on the department website at www.nvpd.org.
The stolen tools will not have cases or at least not have matching cases.
Firefighters battle hay bales
Elsewhere, firefighters with Madison Township and Rykers Ridge Volunteer Fire Departments responded to an agricultural fire on Borcharding Road Wednesday, Dec. 30.
A caller reported that a hay bale was on fire and when firefighters arrived at the scene they found multiple hay bales on fire.
Madison Township and Rykers Ridge answered the call with multiple engines and tankers and requested a tanker from Hanover Volunteer Fire Department through mutual aide.
The fire was extinguished. No injuries were reported.

OBITUARIES

Bob Leach

The Rev. Robert G. “Bob” Leach, 76, of Madison, Indiana, died Saturday, Jan. 2, 2021, at King’s Daughters’ Hospital in Madison.

He was born May 4, 1944, on Spring Creek in Trimble County, Kentucky, to Elmo and Lela F. Morgan Leach. He was raised in Trimble County and attended school there. He also attended Madison High School and later received his GED from Trimble County High School. He married Janis Rae King on May 11, 1962, in Milton, Kentucky, and they had a daughter and three sons. He worked early in life at Williamson Heater Company in Madison for several years and was ordained in 1970 as a pastor in the Pilgrim Holiness faith leading to 45 years of service to his church and community. He had worked at Rexnord-Chain Belt (Envirex/US Filter) for 35 years, retiring in 1999, and had served as sexton and grounds keeper at Springdale Cemetery since 1999. He was co-owner and co-operator of Ohio Valley Excavating since March 2005 and had resided in Madison since 1962. He had served as Conference Treasurer for the Pilgrim Holiness Conference for 12 years and supported the Pilgrim Family Camp and Pilgrim Youth Camp for more than 30 years. He had volunteered with King’s Daughters’ Hospital since 1999 and served as a chaplain. He enjoyed fishing, especially fishing trips with his sons and brother, and cared for his wife in her battle with cancer from July 2015 until her death on Oct. 4, 2015, and then battled his own 2 1/2-year illness with Pulmonary Fibrosis.

Survivors include his daughter, Leanne Zeigler of Shoals, Indiana; his sons, Greg Leach and Steve Leach, both of Madison and Jeremy Leach of Covington, Kentucky; his brother, Michael Leach of Loogootee, Indiana; a special friend, Carolyn “Dee” Strouse of Madison; and 11 grandchildren, four great grandchildren and several nieces, nephews and other relatives.

He was preceded in death by his parents; his wife of 53 years; his sisters, Joann Leach Sutherland in 2007 and Helen LaVerne Leach Taylor in 2014 and a grandson.

Funeral services will be at 11:00 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 9, at the North Madison Christian Church in Madison. Private interment will follow in the Springdale Cemetery in downtown Madison. Visitation is from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday and from 10 a.m. until services Saturday at the church.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Pilgrim Holiness Church or the Springdale Cemetery. Cards are available at the funeral home. Online condolences, remembrances and memorials, www.morgan-nay.com.

death on September 17, 2017.

In Loving Memory of
Joan Melba Neff Knowland

Joan Melba Neff Knowland, age 87 of Madison, passed away on December 30th, 2020 at Hickory Creek of Madison. She was born February 6, 1933 in Louisville, Kentucky. She was the loving daughter of Carl Anton Neff and Melba Hankammer Neff.

Joan grew up in the Portland neighborhood of Louisville where her father, Carl A. Neff, was a pharmacist and owned Neff Pharmacy along with his brother, Earl Neff. She graduated from Shawnee High School in Louisville, Kentucky in 1950. This was the last all-girls class to graduate from there. She was in the high school choir and played the string bass in the orchestra. She then attended Eastern Kentucky State College (now Eastern Kentucky University) where she earned her elementary education degree in 1954. She later received her master’s degree in education from Indiana University. While attending Eastern Kentucky State College, she met her loving husband, Don Knowland. They were married on July 16, 1955 at the West Louisville Evangelical and United Church of Christ and spent 62 wonderful years together until Don’s death on September 17, 2017. They had two daughters for whom Joan ensured were educated and gained as many experiences in life as possible. Don and Joan had a love of travel and spent their summers camping and visiting all the states in the continental United States with their children.

Joan was a teacher for 37 years. She started her teaching career in New Albany, Indiana. She then taught in Hopewell, Virginia while her husband was stationed in the Army as well as many schools in Indiana including the Dillsboro, Versailles, and Madison school systems. She retired after teaching many years at E.O. Muncie and moved with her husband to Sanibel Island, Florida and later Fort Myers, Florida to enjoy retirement. They enjoyed boating, entertaining, playing cards and spending time with friends. They travelled to a total of 67 countries in their retirement.

Joan was a member of Madison Presbyterian Church in Madison, Indiana and Sanibel Community Church in Sanibel, Florida. She had a beautiful voice and enjoyed singing in the choir. She also enjoyed playing the piano and continued to play piano at church until the last year of her life. She also was a member of Tri Kappa Sorority, Madison Teachers Association, Indiana State Teachers Association, and the National Education Association. She also belonged to the American Association of University Women (AAUW) and was a proud Democrat.

While a teacher in the Madison Consolidated Schools, she helped bring these initiatives to the school system: Science Fair, Media Fair, and the Camp Livingston Environmental Program. She taught 4th and 6th grades at E.O. Muncie while teaching for the Madison Consolidated School system. She was known for her jingles that helped students memorize essential skills and still had students come to her in public many years later to recite the jingles they learned in her classroom. She accompanied many Christmas programs on the piano under the direction of JoAnn Williams.

Joan will be missed by her children: Lee Ann Cart and her companion, Bill Owens, of Madison and Ellen Aldrich (Joe), of Wilmer, TX; her loving grandchildren, Lesley Miller (Les) of Madison and Oran Cart (Jessica) of Winfield, IL; her adoring great-grandchildren: Claire, Kate, Cora, and John; her brother, Dr. Carl Neff (Elaine) of Seminole, FL; and her sister-in-law and brother-in-law, Peggy and Bill Wall of Jeffersonville, IN. She was preceded in death by her husband, Don Knowland; her father, Carl Anton Neff; her mother, Melba Neff; her sister, Carol Winger; and her daughter who was stillborn in November 1956.

At Joan’s request, there will be no visitation, and her family will celebrate her life privately. Her ashes will be placed with those of her husband, Donald Knowland, at the Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery in Madison, Indiana.

Memorial contributions may be made to Madison Presbyterian Church in Madison, Indiana or the Madison Consolidated Schools Educational Foundation. Contributions can be made at Lytle Welty Funeral Homes & Cremation Service or online at www.lytlewelty.com.

French bulldog Wilbur new ‘mayor’ of Rabbit Hash

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RABBIT HASH, Ky. — Usually, when someone gets elected they're the one who is seen kissing and holding babies. But in Rabbit Hash, Kentucky, the mayor is the one getting cuddled.

Wilbur, a 6-month-old French bulldog, has recently been “elected” mayor of Rabbit Hash, a small historic district in Boone County.

“He’s was just so cute and squishy and adorable and I thought people would get a kick out of him,” said Amy Noland, Wilbur’s mom.

The election, which coincides with presidential elections, is a fundraiser for the Rabbit Hash Historical Society, the stewards of the town.

Wilbur received 13,143 votes, the highest winning total ever. Overall there were 22,985 votes, the highest total for a Rabbit Hash election according to the Rabbit Hash Historical Society.

Noland, of Burlington, said the secret to their success was overloading social media. It doesn’t hurt that Wilbur is extremely cute.

Noland grew up in Eastern Kentucky and visited Rabbit Hash as a child. She said the small river town reminds her of home.

While living in North Carolina in 1998, she heard the news that Rabbit Hash had elected its first dog mayor.

“That immediately sparked my interest that one day I would want to have a dog as mayor,” Noland said. “I got Wilbur and I just knew he was the one.”

Over the past 22 years, the “election” has been the biggest fundraiser for the Rabbit Hash Historical Society, the nonprofit that ensures the preservation and upkeep of the historic town.

Wilbur is the fifth mayor of Rabbit Hash and will serve for four years before having to run for re-election. Wilbur beat out incumbent mayor Brynn, a pit bull who has spent the last four years in office.

State lawmakers open 2021 legislative session amid coronavirus changes

BY TOM DAVIES

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana lawmakers opened their 2021 legislative session on Monday, largely wearing masks and in greatly modified settings for coronavirus precautions, even as legislative leaders said they were braced for disruptions from possible COVID-19 infections.

The House was gavelled into session for the first time it what will be its temporary location for the next several months, giving up its wood-paneled Statehouse chamber that’s adorned with a 100-light brass chandelier and a marble counter-topped speaker’s dais.

That chamber has been deemed too crowded for the 100 House members and necessary staffers, so the House will meet in a large conference room in a neighboring state office building that appears more like a business convention site filled with folding tables and standard office chairs.

The Senate will continue meeting in its Statehouse chamber, but the balcony is closed to the public as 20 of the 50 senators will be sitting there to allow greater distancing. Plexiglass surrounds the lecterns from which senators speak.

The Republican-dominated Legislature will face debates over whether to roll back GOP Gov. Eric Holcomb’s authority to issue public health orders to stem the COVID-19 spread that has killed more than 8,000 in Indiana and flooded the state’s hospitals with thousands of patients since a sustained surge started in September. Lawmakers must figure out a new state budget by the end of June with plenty of questions about how the coronavirus-sparked recession will impact future state tax collections.

Republican Senate President Pro Tem Rodric Bray of Martinsville said while precautions were being taken against the spread of the coronavirus among lawmakers coming from across the state, General Assembly leaders will simply have to “play it by ear” if infections hit during the legislative session that’s scheduled to last until late April.

“It is possible that we could get to a point, though, where we have staff or senators out in a number that begins to really become problematic that we may have to take a break,” Bray said. “We’re willing to do that if necessary.”

Legislative leaders are encouraging House and Senate members to wear masks, but they are only required for employees and visitors. About a half dozen Republican House members didn’t wear masks during any or most of Monday’s House session that lasted about 40 minutes.

Republican House Speaker Todd Huston of Fishers wore a mask throughout his time presiding and urged patience as the Legislature adjusts how it conducts committee meetings and floor session.

“It would be disingenuous to say we aren’t making it up a little bit as we go along,” Huston said.

Huston, who said a fever lasting several days was his most severe symptom from a COVID-19 infection he suffered last month, and Bray repeated that they wouldn’t disclose any coronavirus infections among lawmakers, citing medical privacy concerns, although they are required to report any positive tests to legislative leaders.

The General Assembly starts with Holcomb and legislative leaders in support of proposals shielding businesses from employee or customer lawsuits over coronavirus exposure and protecting full state payments to school districts with a bypass of a law capping per-pupil funding for students who take at least half their classes virtually at 85% of full in-person student funding.

House Democratic leader Phil GiaQuinta of Fort Wayne urged action to improve Indiana’s public health standings and boost the state’s lagging teacher pay.

GiaQuinta said the temporary House chamber symbolized the dramatic changes caused by the COVID-19 pandemic.

“One thing we should not do is allow the changes in venue and procedures to become an excuse to rush legislation or become less transparent,” GiaQuinta said. “We must strive all the more for openness and efficiency in our work.”

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mrs. Evelyn Marie Thieman Crafton

Mrs. Evelyn Marie Thieman Crafton, age 90, of Hanover, Indiana entered this life on April 22, 1930 in Trimble County, Kentucky. She was the loving daughter of the late Ernest and Lena Hotfil Thieman. She graduated from Milton High School in 1948, where she was cheerleader and had been involved i the 4-H Club and won awards in canning and sewing. Evelyn was raised in Hunter's Bottom and was raised in the St. Peter Lutheran Church there. Early on Evelyn worked at the Butler Brothers Five and Dime Store in Madison. On January 28, 1950 she was united in marriage to Robert Lindbergh Crafton. This happy union of 52 years was blessed with children. Ronnie, Terry, Wanda, Sue and Sheila. Robert and Evelyn settled in the Saluda area and lived there most of her life, except for the five years they lived at Hanover Beach. Evelyn went to work at Southwestern High School in 1975 and retired from there in 1992. They also enjoyed the five years they lived down at the Hanover Beach. Evelyn later became a member of the New Prospect Baptist Church and enjoyed the Women's Missionary Circle there. She also enjoyed memberships in the Saluda Homemakers Club, WMS and the Jefferson County Quilt Show. Later in life Evelyn moved to Hanover and would walk to the Hanover Baptist Church, when she was unable to make it to New Prospect. After moving into Thornton Terrace she really enjoyed Bible study with Pastor J.D. Traylor. She learned to play the piano from Mrs. Neal and had begun at the age of 13 playing at St. Peter's Lutheran and later at New Prospect Baptist Church. Evelyn liked to quilt, sew and crochet and left many family heirlooms to treasure. She was an excellent cook and always liked preparing meals for her family. She was awaiting the birth of another great great grandchild. Evelyn died on Saturday, January 2, 2021, at 7:45 a.m. at the Thornton Terrace Health Campus in Hanover, Indiana.

Madison gets back on winning track with victory over Corydon

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison shrugged off its recent two-game losing skid with a double-digit win over a potential sectional opponent, beating Corydon Central, 71-59, in boys basketball Saturday night at home.

The win capped a weird week for the Cubs, who came in determined to stamp themselves as one of the best 3A teams in the state. Instead, Madison ended it trying to erase the memory of an embarrassing 21-point loss to East Central on Wednesday.

For the most part, the Cubs did just that. Madison never trailed in the game and although the outcome was never truly in doubt, the Cubs never exactly put the game away either.

But the end result was a win and for a team still trying to cement its place in the landscape and that was the most important thing.

“(Corydon) is a very well-coached team and I tell our guys all the time that you don’t have to look far in the state of Indiana to find good teams,” Madison coach Sherron Wilkerson said. “Coach Hinton had them ready to play and we were lucky to get out of here with a win.”

Madison (5-2) set the tone for the game early, jumping out to a 12-4 lead and holding onto a 17-12 advantage after one quarter. The Cubs pushed the lead to double-digits early in the second quarter and, other than right before halftime, never let it drop below single digits again.

But any thoughts of a quick knockout slowly evaporated throughout the course of the game. Every time Madison built a big lead, Corydon would come back. A Luke Schafer layup late in the third put the Cubs ahead

David Campbell

Madison’s Parker Jones (30) and Jackson Falconberry celebrate with teammate Luke Ommen (on floor) after Ommen scored and was fouled during the Cubs’ win on Saturday.

49-28, but three straight 3-pointers by the Panthers closed the gap to 12 (49-37) early in the fourth.

Madison again flirted with a blowout late in the game, pushing the margin to 19 (63-44) on back-to-back layups by Nick Center and Luke Miller, only to see Corydon score nine-straight points in less than three minutes to close the gap to 10.

Luke Ommen ended that run with a basket out of a timeout and Madison was never threatened again, eventually winning by 12.

Despite the win, there were still warning signs for the Cubs. Madison had only 13 assists to 12 turnovers in the game and hit just 5-of-14 shots from 3-point range. But the Cubs shot 47% (27-for-57) overall and dominated the boards 43-24, a big change from its loss on Wednesday.

Wilkerson and the team stayed in the locker room for nearly an hour after the game and while the coach declined to say what was discussed, he did say that defense will have to be one of the team’s focuses in the future.

“We struggle with straight-line drives and it doesn’t matter what defense you’re in and it

Jac-Cen-Del ruins Shawe’s return with 42-point blowout

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Shawe boys basketball received a rude welcome back to the court on Saturday when conference foe Jac-Cen-Del ran away from the Hilltoppers to a 69-27 blowout win in Madison.

The Hilltoppers hadn’t hit the floor for a game since Dec. 2 thanks to COVID-19 issues at the school and had only been back at practice for a week when they were forced to square off against one of the best teams in the conference.

The result was predictable. The Eagles, playing their 12th game of the season, took advantage of the rusty Hilltoppers, scoring the first 12 points of the game and never looking back to improve to 3-0 in the Ohio River Valley Conference.

“We’ve been out for five of the first eight weeks of the season and that’s tough on anybody. This whole week I feel like we’ve been starting over,” Shawe coach Dan Hambrick said. “That’s a good ball team. Jac-Cen-Del beat Southwestern and Southwestern is an excellent team. We didn’t get beat by a bad team. But we’re just trying to get things back into shape.”

Shawe (1-1, 0-1 ORVC) didn’t score a point until Eli Turner drained a short jumper five minutes into the game and Shawe trailed 18-2 after the first quarter. The Hilltoppers found their range in the second and scored 11 points but a 17-0 run in the third quarter by the Eagles blew open the game.

For Hambrick, the key to the contest was just getting back on the floor. A young team, the Hilltoppers need as many reps as they can get to get better and they simply were unable to do that for virtually the entire month of December.

“We’re young, we’ve been out for a month and we’re out of shape. All we can do is take one game at a time and try to get back into the swing,” Hambrick said. “I know it’s January but we’ve got a couple of months before we have to play sectionals. We still have time.”

Grayson May hit three 3-pointers and scored nine points to lead Shawe while Philip Kahn scored seven points and Turner chipped in five.

Caleb Simon led Jac-Cen-Del (9-2, 3-0 ORVC) with 14 points while Wyatt Day, Matt Dickman and Christian Comer each scored 10.

The schedule doesn’t get any easier for Shawe, which will play three games in three days to end this week. The Hilltoppers head to Southwestern on Thursday and host Oldenburg on Friday before traveling to Providence on Saturday.

McLain’s 18 leads Lady Rebels over Clarksville

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Southwestern junior Trinity McLain tied her career-high in scoring and Southwestern’s girls basketball team knocked off Clarksville, 50-26, Saturday on the road.

McLain hit four 3-pointers and scored 18 points to lead the Rebels, who pulled away from Clarksville in the second half.

Ashton Goode added 11 points, Ellie Foley scored nine and Isabel Brooks, Ashley Fulton and Allie Wilberding scored four points each for the Rebels.

Southwestern, now 6-4 on the season, travels to North Decatur today and hosts Shawe as part of a boys-girls doubleheader on Thursday.

Taylor, Colts past Jags, back into playoffs

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Jonathan Taylor got the Indianapolis Colts revved up early.

Then he hit the accelerator.

The rookie ran for a franchise-record 253 yards, scored twice and sprinted 45 yards to the end zone with 3:35 to play, powering the Colts to a play-off-clinching 28-14 victory over the Jacksonville Jaguars on Sunday.

“There’s not many times you have (a game like) that,” 39-year-old quarterback Philip Rivers said. “I don’t know that I’ve ever been around that. I know LT (LaDainian Tomlinson) had some big days, so I don’t want to say he didn’t have anything like that. But just an unbelievable day.”

Tomlinson’s best was a 243-yard performance against the Raiders in 2003 — one year before Rivers arrived in San Diego and three years before Rivers made his first start.

Taylor’s breakout game, given the circumstances, will never be forgotten by Colts fans.

One week after a blown 17-point, third-quarter lead at Pittsburgh put Indy on the cusp of missing the playoffs altogether, Buffalo provided the help the Colts needed with a 56-26 rout of Miami earlier Sunday.

Rusty Lady Hilltoppers no match for 5th-ranked JCD

BY JORDAN BEAR

Shawe girls basketball played its first game in a month and a half and ran into a buzzsaw, falling 75-3 at home to No. 5 Jac-Cen-Del on Saturday afternoon.

The Eagles, ranked fifth in Class A, overwhelmed Shawe from the first quarter and held the Hilltoppers scoreless for the first two and a half quarters.

A free throw by Abigail Hill in the third quarter broke a 49-0 Eagles run and Shawe didn't hit a shot from the floor until Hill's jumper with 10 seconds left in the game.

Jac-Cen-Del coach Scott Smith took his foot off the gas after the first quarter and the Eagles played zone for the final three periods. Smith routinely kept rotating players in off the bench and it was one of those reserves, Jalee Rider, that led Jac-Cen-Del (11-3, 2-0 Ohio River Valley) with 17 points and was the only Eagle in double figures.

While the game itself was far from ideal, what mattered for Shawe was to finally be able to play an actual game. The school has been decimated with COVID-19 issues and the girls team had not played Shawe's Phoebe Grote (wth ball) attempts to split the double-team of Reagan Hughes (14) and Paige Ledford during Saturday's game in Madison.

David Campbell

a game since Nov. 21 — a victory over Bloomington Lighthouse. Making matters worse, the school was also shut down completely with no athletic practices or games for two weeks in December. They only returned to practice on Dec. 26.

Assistant coach Greg Ison, who is currently sitting in for head coach Terry King as he recovers from heart surgery, said it was nice just to be able to get in a game.

"It was tough that our first game after just six practices had to be against one of the best teams in the state, but these girls worked hard all game long and never quit regardless of what the score was," Ison said.

"I tip my hat to the girls; they stayed in the game and fought against the best team we'll see all year and I'm so proud of them for just going out there and giving it their all."

Ison said his now team needs to have a short memory and put the loss behind.

"We have practice on Monday and then we head down to Clarksville on Tuesday in a game that I firmly believe that we can win, so I hope the girls come in Monday and are ready to go for Tuesday night," Ison said.

Shawe, now 1-1 overall and 0-1 in the ORVC, then visits Southwestern on Thursday as part of a boys-girls doubleheader.

Batesville snaps Switzerland's 8-game win streak, 44-35

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Batesville pulled away in the second half to end Switzerland County's eight-game win streak, 44-35, in girls basketball Saturday in Vevay.

The Pacers, who had not lost a game since early November, were locked in a 20-20 tie at halftime but the Bulldogs were able to get in front in the second half and pull out the win.

Maddie Duvall had 14 points and eight rebounds to lead Switzerland, which played the game without leading scorer Jessie Duvall. Kierstan Oeffinger had eight points and five rebounds while Macy Collier scored four points and Halle Archer and Gracie White scored three points each.

Switzerland, now 9-2 on the season, turns its sights to the Rivertown Classic, which begins at South Dearborn on Wednesday.

The Pacers take on rival Rising Sun in the semifinals and face either Lawrenceburg or South Dearborn in the consolation or championship on Friday.

Ravens clinch playoff spot with 38-3 blowout of Bengals

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — As one of the NFL's worst COVID-19 outbreaks sidelined star players, and injuries hit others, the Baltimore Ravens didn't look like a playoff team in late November.

But as quarterback Lamar Jackson came roaring back, so did Baltimore.

After a Dec. 2 loss to Pittsburgh with Jackson on the COVID-19 list, the Ravens rebounded and won the next four. That set them up to earn a wild card with a victory in the finale against the Cincinnati Bengals, who finally had some momentum after winning two straight.

The Ravens left no doubt they belonged in the postseason with a 38-3 rout of the Bengals on Sunday, with Jackson throwing three touchdown passes and becoming the first quarterback in NFL history with two seasons of more than 1,000 rushing yards.

The Ravens (11-5) ran for a club record 404 yards — the fourth team since 1950 to rush for more than 400 in a single game — and amassed 525 overall in advancing to the playoffs for the third straight season. The Ravens took the fifth seed in the AFC with Miami's loss at Buffalo and will play at AFC South champion Tennessee (11-5) next Sunday at 1:05 p.m. EST.

"It's pretty cool," Jackson said. "Now we have to win or go home. That's what it's been the last few weeks. We have to win to keep going."

Rookie J.K. Dobbins rushed for 160 yards and two touchdowns, including a 72-yard scoring romp in the third quarter.

"It's a bunch of guys that are happy, but we're still hungry," Dobbins said. "We're glad to get this win and get in, but we know what the ultimate goal is, and that's what's on our minds right now."

Jackson rushed for 97 yards and threw for 113 before taking a seat in the third quarter. He has run or passed for at least one touchdown in 36 straight starts, the longest active streak in the NFL.

Baltimore scored on its first two drives, a 34-yard Justin Tucker field goal followed by a 43-yard touchdown pass from Jackson to Miles Boykin. The Ravens extended the lead to 17-0 when Jackson capped a clock-eating 93-yard drive with an 18-yard TD pass to Marquise Brown.

That meant the Colts (11-5) were in the seven-team playoff field with a win.

The No. 7 seed heads to Buffalo on Saturday, its first postseason appearance since 2018 and its second since 2015, thanks largely to Taylor.

He got started with a 56-yard burst on Indy's third play, which set up one score. His 1-yard TD run in the second quarter made it 17-0.

Jacksonville (1-15) finally responded with a touchdown in the final minute of the first half and another in the third quarter to close within 20-14 and it looked like Indy might squander another big lead.

Taylor made sure it didn't happen with his late dash to the end zone.

"It just felt like he was running great and we kind of had an idea we were going to do that," coach Frank Reich said. "This is such a big game and he's been in beast mode as we've said. So he's earned that right and he certainly looked great today."

Afterward, Colts players and coaches gathered to watch on TV as Tennessee's last-second field goal thwarted their AFC South championship hopes.

Hall of Famer Edgerrin James was the only other Colts player to top 200 yards. He had a 219-yard game at Seattle in October 2000 then ran for 204 yards four years later at Chicago.

Taylor tied DeMarco Murray for the ninth-highest single-game rushing total in NFL history.

Jacksonville concluded a historically bleak season. The Jags lost their final 15 games after beating the Colts in the season opener.

Along the way, they benched their opening-day starting quarterback, fired their general manager and clinched the No. 1 overall draft pick.

More changes could be coming Monday. Coach Doug Marrone is 12-36 since leading Jacksonville to the AFC championship game following the 2017 season and seems resigned to the possibility of losing his job. He said he spoke to team owner Shad Khan before the game about reports that Urban Meyer could replace him.

"I think when the record is what it is, you have to be able to expect those things," Marrone said. "But like I said before, I asked about it. It was like new news for us. We'll see what happens."

Madison girls drop two in Plainfield Tournament

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Madison girls basketball dropped a pair of losses and finished fourth in the Plainfield Tournament on Saturday.

The Cubs lost 42-27 to Roncalli in the morning semifinal then a closer 47-41 decision to host Plainfield in the nightcap.

Madison and Roncalli were tied 13-13 in the first game but the Rebels outscored the Cubs 16-9 in the third and 13-5 in the fourth to pull away for the win.

Senior Jade Nutley and junior Taylor Lynch combined for all but one of the Cubs' points in the loss.

Nutley had an impressive double-double of 16 points and 15 rebounds while Lynch had 10 points, seven rebounds, three assists and three steals. Lundun Perry had the other point for Madison.

Sydney Horton led Roncalli with 13 points while Savannah Bischoff had 11 points and eight 10 rebounds, and Madelyn Bischoff had 10 points and eight rebounds.

The third quarter again doomed Madison in the loss to Plainfield. The Cubs led 15-11 after the first quarter and were tied 21-21 at half-time, but were outscored 12-2 in the third. Madison tried to dig out of the hole in the final frame, but fell short.

Nutley had another impressive double-double, scoring 19 points and pulling down 12 rebounds while dishing out three assists.

She now has 1,204 career points to move into fifth on the school's career scoring list past Olivia Crozier and Tiffany Park. She also now has 802 career rebounds, which is 118 behind Crozier's 920 school record.

Lynch, Perry, Casey Dyer, Daesja Jay and Cadence Traylor each scored four points for Madison. Lynch also had 11 rebounds and five assists.

Ellie Wilkerson had 22 points and Maycee Woods scored 12 to lead Plainfield.

Madison has now lost five games in a row, all against Class 4A schools. Now 4-9 on the season, the Cubs host Brownstown Central on Tuesday and New Albany on Thursday.

doesn't matter where you force them, we've got to keep the basketball in front of us," Wilkerson said. "That is the whole mantra we've been trying to get through and hopefully it catches because if it catches, I think we can be pretty good."

Luke Miller led Madison with 22 points on 8-of-14 shooting while Ommen had a fantastic game, scoring 15 points on 7-of-10 shooting to go with 10 rebounds and three assists.

Center scored 12 points, Schafer had seven and Jackson Falconberry and Parker Jones each had four.

Jagger Holton scored 16 points to lead Corydon (2-5) while Anthony Martin had 12 points and Bryce Weber scored 11.

Madison returns to action this week with two more games against potential sectional opponents by hosting Scottsburg on Friday and traveling to Charlestown on Saturday.

Men’s March Madness will be played in Indiana

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The NCAA announced Monday that all 67 men’s basketball tournament games including the Final Four will be played entirely in Indiana in a bid to keep the marquee event from being called off for a second consecutive year because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Games will be played one at a time on two courts inside Lucas Oil Stadium, home of the NFL’s Indianapolis Colts. They will also be held at Bankers Life Fieldhouse, Hinkle Fieldhouse, Indiana Farmers Coliseum, Mackey Arena at Purdue and Assembly Hall in Bloomington.

Championship weekend is still scheduled for April 3 and April 5 but preliminary round dates have not yet been determined.

“Last year, we had to rip March Madness away from all the teams and all the fans at the very last minute,” NCAA President Mark Emmert said during a video call. “We know it was the right thing to do, but it was a painful thing to do. So we want to deliver this year on the promise of March Madness. They deserve it.”

Still to be determined is how many fans will be allowed inside the venues.

NCAA officials said a limited number of family members of players and coaches could attend games but decisions about expanding attendance or conducting fan events will be announced later.

The pandemic has already canceled scores of college basketball games this season, with postponements and COVID-19

Games will be played one at a time on two courts inside Lucas Oil Stadium, home of the NFL’s Indianapolis Colts. They will also be held at Bankers Life Fieldhouse, Hinkle Fieldhouse, Indiana Farmers Coliseum, Mackey Arena at Purdue and Assembly Hall in Bloomington.

issues nearly a daily occurrence.

“This is going to be complicated and difficult; there’s no question about that,” NCAA vice president of basketball Dan Gavitt said.

Ball State, Butler, Indiana, IUPUI and Purdue will serve as host schools and the Horizon League will host games played at Lucas Oil Stadium, just a short distance away from NCAA headquarters.

The NCAA also plans to hold its Division II and Division III tournaments in Indiana.

Gavitt said most of the Division I games will be played in the Indianapolis area, though some first-round games will be played at Indiana and Purdue. Both Big Ten schools are approximately an hour’s drive from Indianapolis.

The NCAA said it intends to partner with a local health provider to administer COVID-19 testing for players, coaches, school administrators and officials and will continue to work with public health officials to maintain a safe and healthy environment around the tournament

CBS Sports and Turner Sports will continue to televise all of the games on the TBS, CBS, TNT and truTV networks and their digital platforms.

“March Madness will take place in 2021, but the environment in which we live is drastically different, which means the tournament will have a different feel as well,” Gavitt said. “Currently, there are no changes to the field size of 68, Selection Sunday is still scheduled for March 14 and the Final Four will still be played April 3 and 5.”

The NCAA had said it intended to play the entire tourney in one general locale and Indianapolis would be the likely place. There are dozens of downtown hotels and restaurants within walking distance of multiple basketball venues with additional practice facilities just a short drive away.

Indianapolis has served as the host for seven men’s Final Fours since 1980 in addition to a litany of early round games and regional championships.

Indy also has hosted multiple women’s Final Fours. The NCAA has not yet announced plans for the women’s tourney, though a similar decision to host all games in one locale is expected.

“Since 1940, our city has been the backdrop for 97 NCAA men’s tournament games, putting us at No. 5 for all-time hosts,” Mayor Joe Hogsett said. “By the time the 2021 tournament ends, Indy will be No. 1 and I have every confidence our city is up to the task of running these games in a safe and healthy environment.”

CROZIER RETIRES AFTER 33 YEARS

District 9 Lt. Andy Crozier, of Jefferson County, worked his final shift with the DNR Law Enforcement Division on Dec. 31, retiring after a 33-year career.

Crozier, also of Madison, took his oath of office to begin serving as a conservation officer on Oct. 13, 1987, and had been promoted from field officer to Corporal and later to Sergeant before retiring as a Lieutenant.

campground,” Woolard told members of the city’s Parks Board last week. “The site allows the city to collect data — daily, weekly, monthly and seasonally — for use in evaluating what programs are working and which ones are not ... As long as we input everything correctly, we will have all of the data right there.”

Woolard said having data is especially important — and something the parks department has lacked easy access to in the past — because it allows the city to better understand which programs are drawing the most participants and how that participation relates to the costs of providing those services.

“On the back end we can do a lot of the reporting and financial things and on the front end we can help people sign up,” he noted.

So far recdesk is accepting reservations for the campground and payment for annual usage fees for the Madison Dog Park on Vaughn Drive and the Sports Courts for pickleball and Bocce at the former Madison Country Club property on the west end of downtown.

Woolard said registration for girls youth basketball and men’s adult basketball is also available through the site and that others will be added as their registration periods draw closer.

He said officials are still trying to determine how far ahead golfers will be allowed to reserve tee times — the concern is that some golfers might try to look in preferred tee times for an entire season — but season pass golfers who use the site will be recognized as as having already paid when they check in at the clubhouse.

In other business, Woolard reported that registrations for this year’s boys youth basketball league was unsuccessful in attracting enough participants to form teams.

“We had only 10 participants sign up after registration was open for five weeks,” he said. “As recent as 2016 we had 70 to 80 kids participating so I’m going to chalk it up to COVID since basketball is a little more of a contact sport. So we think it’s COVID, hopefully, and we’ll try again next year.”

Woolard said he hopes the response to boys youth basketball does not carry over to the upcoming girls and adult men’s basketball leagues, which are accepting registrations this month for play in February and March.

He said the men’s adult basketball, formerly contested in the spring and fall, will now be played in winter and summer — the thought being that as college students return home during the summer there will be more players interested in basketball leagues then.

“During the summer there are a lot of people in from out of town — I know I would of played when I was home from college during the summer — so we hope to have better participation and competition,” he said.

Woolard also reported that senior programs coordinator Dave Stucker recently requested and was granted a transfer from Parks to the Street Department so Parks is currently without a senior coordinator.

However, the city’s Senior Citizens Center remains shut down currently with programs suspended during the coronavirus pandemic. He said the facility on Main Street is still being used as a COVID-19 test location he sees no immediate changes in that status.

Meanwhile, Woolard said the city is surveying and seeking feedback on how to develop more adult programs like age 40 and over basketball and softball programs and/or developing more adult coed leagues.

“We want to see what kind of participation we can get and if get enough positive feedback, we will add programming,” he said.

A toxic home

Dear Annie: I have been with my husband for almost nine years. We have been married for three years. His family was nice to me before the wedding, but after, they became aloof. His daughter is horrible. She has NO respect, not even for my husband.

My husband has a lot of money — a few million dollars. He has never told me this, but his friends did. I also found paperwork showing that he has about $2.5 million. We live in a rat hole, to say the least, and with the COVID-19, I lost my job of 46 years. Before we married, I had my own house, car and life. Now I rent my house; my car is in the garage; and my husband is a recluse. I have no money, and the unemployment agency keeps saying I owe them money for the past 10 months. I thought they were supposed to pay me money!

My husband is a Scrooge. He's 68 years old and acts like he's 98. He does not want to do anything or go anywhere and complains about money all the time.

Asking him for grocery money is like pulling teeth. He knows he has me in a rut, as I'm not working.

My daughter-in-law has never given us a card, a gift or a kind word in the nine years that we have been together. My husband thinks she's a goddess and treats her like a queen. My husband's ex-wife went with his brother and divorced him and took him for a pretty penny.

I now know that his family is upset because they think I will get some of his money and they won't get a dime. I'm pretty sad, as I can't even get grocery money. He always said he was leaving his daughter everything. I made a huge mistake, and with COVID-19 and no money, I will lose everything.

My daughter-in-law comes over. She has two horrible little kids who won't sit still in a restaurant or at home. When the kids were diaper age, she would leave dirty diapers around, leave dirty towels on the floor and never bring us anything, not even at Christmas or on birthdays. My daughter-in-law only thinks about herself and only buys clothes, haircuts, cars and houses for herself. Her mother lives near us, and she came for her mom's birthday, yet she has never given a card for my husband's birthday. She tells us what she buys her mom. It's heartbreaking. He never sees his friends and my friends. I have many friends who think he's weird and that I should go.

I'm going crazy. I need help but have no medical coverage at the moment. I'm dying inside. Please tell me what I can do. — Living With Scrooge in Las Vegas

Dear Living With Scrooge: I'm sorry that you are living in what sounds like a very toxic house. Focusing on your daughter-in-law's and her children's faults and how horrible they are does very little to dissipate the toxicity. It sounds like there is a lot of blame and anger to go around, including on your end. It is time to consult a professional marriage counselor. That is the best way to figure out whether this marriage is worth saving. You should feel more alive with your partner, not like you are dying inside.

Couple is worlds apart before tying the knot

Dear Annie: My fiancée and I have been together for six years, and I am having a hard time understanding where I fit in her life. She claims to love me, but lately, her actions just don't say that. She puts everyone ahead of me. Last Christmas, we went to her mom's on the other side of the country and her mom told her she had to introduce me as her friend.

She still has contact with her ex-husband, who, after we got together, asked her to send him inappropriate pictures of herself. She contacts him when she gets drunk, about every six months. Then she lies about it, even when I catch her talking to him.

Her daughter who is 30 just had her fourth child, and my fiancée devotes time and money to her. Her daughter makes more money than both of us. We spent over $250 on a baby shower for her daughter and only about $50 on my son and his wife when they were expecting their first child.

I just feel like I am being used and taken advantage of. We bought a car together last summer, and she put it solely in her name.

Every time I ask if we can get my name on the title, she says, "Sure, you pay for it." I think we should go halves like we did paying for the car. — Scared and Confused

Dear Scared and Confused: Actions speak louder than words, and it sounds like she is being selfish and entitled. But it is up to you to stick up for yourself and say that you are not going to give half the money if she doesn't put the car in your name. As far as how much money was spent on her daughter versus your son, try not to count pennies. It's about the celebration of the baby and the love that is present, not the amount of money spent on the celebration.

I suggest you both go to counseling before you tie the knot. Best of luck to you.

Dear Annie: The information you gave regarding the National Domestic Abuse Hotline is wonderful. In addition, I'd like to encourage Trapped, or any other woman (or man or child!), to reach out to their primary care provider. We are usually aware of our local women's shelters and can move women and children immediately — often from our office and out a back door if needed — to a safe place. Trapped can make an appointment with her provider for an annual checkup. If he insists on going into the exam room, after the nurse does blood pressure, etc., she can ask to use the bathroom and slip a prewritten note to the nurse or leave the note in the bathroom. That should prompt the provider to make her husband leave the exam room. Unfortunately, I've had to do this too often in my practice. — Nurse Practitioner Who's Been There

Dear Nurse Practitioner: Thank you for your letter. Reaching out to your primary care provider is a wonderful suggestion for those suffering domestic abuse.

Cal ejected as Kentucky ends 6-game skid

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

STARKVILLE, Miss. — Freshman Don-taie Allen scored a career-high 23 points with seven 3-pointers and Kentucky ended its six-game skid beating Mississippi State 78-73 in double overtime Saturday night.

Allen finished 7-for-11 shooting from beyond the arc and 8-for-14 overall.

Olivier Sarr's 3 to start the second over-time gave the Wildcats the lead for good.

Iverson Molinar missed a contested 3 at the buzzer to send it to a second over-time. The Wildcats missed three shots on their final possession to force the first extra session.

Kentucky coach John Calipari was ejected after being issued consecutive technical fouls with 9:04 left in regulation and the Wildcats down 52-46 following Molinar's jump shot. Allen sank 5 of his 3s following Calipari's ejection.

Allen entered the contest having scored just a pair of baskets in 20 minutes of action prior to Saturday.

It was Kentucky's (2-6, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) first win since its season opener the day before Thanksgiving.

D.J. Stewart Jr. led the Bulldogs (6-4, 1-1) with 19 points.

PROJECTS

Courtney said the city hopes to work with INDOT on reaching a solution to the problem and he thinks INDOT will develop a plan by the spring when the project contractor is due back at the site to finish paving the new highway.

Courtney said he would also like to address the pedestrian crossing at Main and Jefferson streets — the route US 421 follows through downtown Madison — because lighting and cross-walks are not sufficient for safe crossing by pedestrians.

The mayor noted that the Jefferson-Main intersection is just one of the hurdles the city will be crossing over the next few years to upgrade and improve Main Street in downtown Madison. Some of that work begins this year while some of it could take years to complete on the 4-mile route through downtown Madison to the top of Hanover Hill.

"We've got a lot of work in store for us in 2021," Courtney said, noting that a state Community Crossings grant received in late 2020 will help get the ball rolling but it will ultimately take bigger federal dollars to get it over the finish line years down the road.

Madison Board of Public Works and Safety member David Carlow checks his phone while enjoying some fresh air before the start of that meeting at Madison City Hall on Monday. The city opened 2021 with in-person meetings but maintained social distancing and the use of face masks.

Mindy McGee, Courtney's chief of staff, said the first project will be to use the matching Community Crossings money to seal and stabilize Main Street as a stopgap measure to extend the road-way's life until bigger federal grants can be found to fund a complete redesign, with roadway milling and repaving as well as new crosswalks and some sidewalks.

"It will look like a new road but not be a new road or cost as much as a new road," McGee said of the work coming up this year. "But we will have to do all new striping and crosswalks when we're finished."

Courtney said using stop-gap measures like the sealing is the only way the city can keep the road safe and usable until money can be found for the bigger overhaul. "It's like 13 or 14 lane miles over the 4-mile roadway," he said, noting parts of the highway are four lanes wide. "There's a lot of work to do there. It's a big and expensive project."

While the entire bridge access project won't be completed until the spring, Eaglin said that the alternative access sidewalk from Harrison Street to the pedestrian walkway over the bridge has now been completed and is open for public use.

"I used the new bridge walkway just the other day," Eaglin said. "It's very nice and provides a lot easier way to get to the bridge on foot and a walk to get to Vaughn Drive and the river from up top."

The Indiana side of the bridge was originally built with only one access to the walkway, requiring climbing up a series of ramps from Vaughn Drive while the Kentucky side was designed with a more direct route from the start.

McGee also reported that a sidewalk project connecting Cragmont Street to the Madison Junior High School campus along Eighth Street on Madison's hilltop is nearing completion except for a railing at one stretch of the walkway.

Eaglin also recommended the board consider spending time this year developing a system for naming alleys throughout the city. He said naming the alleys would provide more accurate addressing and assist the 911 dispatch with providing better directions to emergency responders.
